CITY LIBRARIAN 23 YEARS

Louise Franks Retires Here

After 56 years of women reigning at Upland Public Library -- a man has finally broken into the "all-female" bastion. Charles Kaufman distinguishes himself as being the only man to ever be City Librarian. Kaufman was formerly Librarian at the Venice Branch of the Los Angeles Library System.

Although Louise Franke was born in Ontario and went to Upland Elementary School she's not a "native Uplander" as many people have thought. She grew up at the "old Carnegie Library" (now converted into the Administration Department) and said she got her first picture books from there. She fondly recalls Adda Manker-Upland's first City Librarian who personally took care of nearly every child who entered Carnegie Library.

Ms. Franke has always loved to read-as might be expected-and would "bury herself in books" at the library on rainy days--Ms. Manker would end up telephoning her mother to come and pick her up. It was Ms. Manker that gets the credit for inspiring Ms. Franke to go into library work.

Ms. Franke went to Chaffey High School and Chaffey College and got her Library Science schooling at Riverside Library

After marrying and working at A. K. Smiley Library in Redlands for four years, she was asked to come back and be librarian in Upland. "It was just by chance that I returned to Upland and to my favorite old library," she recalls.

In 1950 she began working as Children's Librarian and Adult Librarian at the old Carnegie Library. She got talked into becoming Upland's Head Librarian in 1960 and has served in that capacity the past 12 years.

Even though the cramped space conditions were unbearable at the old Carnegie Library -- Ms. Franke was sorry to see it disbanded as a library in 1969. "It was a very warm and friendly old library and a lot of local people loved it," she said. Ms. Franke tells about how the stacks grew so high that librarians first used footstools to reach them -- then five foot tall ladders and finally eight foot tall ladders! "You had to be an agile person to work there," she said jokingly.

Ms. Franke vividly recalls "MOVING DAY" in January of 1969--right during the floods--it rained continuously throughout the move she said. With the modern, spacious new building everything about the Upland Library grew she said.

At that time the library also became part of the large county Inland Library System and the staff grew considerably. (many more students were hired to help out) Ms. Franke said the modernistic new building by Architect Edward Durrell Stone attracted many visitors and lots and lots of new borrowers. "For months we kept running out of registration supplies for new library cards because of the number of people that came in," she noted. She mentioned that the Friends of the Upland Library were very enthusiastic and generous and had supplied the library with a display case and subscription to Bro-Dart-a service supplying the latest popular books each month.

Los Olivos Executive Director Appointed Here

With the appointment of a new permanent executive director, all five personnel vacancies on the Los Olivos modernization project have been filled. Upland Housing Authority commissioners met in a special session last Thursday and voted to approve the hiring of Rev. Jerry Leggit, 36, as executive director. Leggit has been an advisor to the Los Olivos tenants' council for the past two years and has been in close contact with Los Olivos residents and the modernization project. The commissioners set his salary as $842 per month.

John B. Shoemaker, Upland's

community relations coordinator, who served as temporary executive director for the month of September, has returned full-time to his work with the city. All signs indicate that tumultuous times during August and early September are over now for the HUD-financed modernization project which is still only half completed. Shoemaker reports the construction work is back on an "even keel" and progressing smoothly. The four vacant job openings have been filled with personnel who've avoided personality clashes with Los Olivos residents.

Sgt. Boyd F. Kidd, station commander of the U.S. Army Recruiting Station in Ontario, reported that recruiters have started a new campaign to seek volunteers to enlist in the Modern Volunteer Army (MVA) which will go in effect July 1, 1973 when the current draft system expires.

Upland's Proclamation states in part, "The Modern Volunteer Army is taking new and bold steps to accommodate the legitimate sensitivities of today's young American men and women as it builds this great country a smaller, more professional military force and today's Army offers our brightest and most promising young men and women the opportunity for advanced education and training in more than 300 different jobs, that they become more useful and responsible citizens of our nation, as Mayor of Upland, do hereby proclaim the month of September, '72, as Modern Volunteer Army Month in the City and commend this observance to all citizens, but especially to those young people of Upland between the ages of 17 and 21."

Sgt. Kidd explained that a volunteer army has been under con-

'Environmental' Ruling Under Discussion

By PATRICIA REID
Of The News Staff

Concerned Upland Councilmen met in executive session following Monday's Council meeting to discuss the effect the new "environmental impact" decision will have on Upland's planning developments.

Mayor Abner B. Haldeman seriously said, "The weight of this recent environmental statement demands that it must receive immediate attention and it won't be easy." Haldeman said since the State Superior Court's ruling last week he's received word that construction has been halted in Orange County and planning has also stopped in Santa Barbara -- due to a lack of an environmental impact statement.

In a landmark decision interpreting California's Environmental Quality Act for the first time the State Supreme Court ruled in favor of one of its clients, Friends of Mammoth, that the Act applies to private land development as well as to public works projects.

The court held that Local Planning Commissions, City Councils and Boards of Supervisors must study and prepare reports on the total effect of proposed private developments which could have a significant effect on the environment. (Friends of Mammoth obtained a court order halting construction of eight-story condominiums at Mammoth Lakes on the grounds that no such environmental impact study had been made.)

City Attorney Donald E. Maroney stated that Upland doesn't have a conservation element in its General Plan. He stated that the retroactive date for effect of the law is Nov. 23, 1970 and that even though work's been started on some projects, building permits may be revoked because of the lack of an environmental impact statement.

In other business, Haldeman reported that he'd received a letter from Ernie Miller, president of the Upland City Employees Association, requesting that he meet on short notice. Haldeman explained that because the press wasn't notified he couldn't attend. Miller said, "The Police and Fire Department would appreciate having a meeting with you in the near future."

Haldeman then said that a progress report on the city's dispute with firemen would be given to the council during a closed executive session.

Councilman George Gibson and Max Hawkins were absent Monday. Haldeman presented former Councilman R. D. (Mike) Rossiter an award for serving the city for eight years.

An ordinance to establish a new zoning classification of R-3-4350 carried with a 2-1 (Harold Ballin dissenting) vote on the first reading. Ballin doesn't think the additional zone class (allowing 7-10 homes per acre instead of the present 7-12) is needed nor that developers will ever consider using it. Haldeman feels the Mayor's Advisory Committee may use this type zoning as a solution to lower density on Mountain Avenue.

The Council postponed an ordinance concerning Planned Residential Development and Planned Unit Development until the first meeting in November because Planning Director Rod Anderson wasn't present to explain the Planning Commission's numerous revisions since the regulation first came up at the Sept. 5 meeting.

It was decided that Assistant City Manager Lee Travers and John McCarthy, mayor pro-tem, would represent Upland at Tuesday's Land Agency Formation Committee (LAFC) meeting concerning the dispute over Ontario's sphere of influence.

Considerable discussion took place concerning the high cost of getting architectural plans for the new Civic Center Project. Ballin questioned the estimated cost of from $25,000-

$28,000 for plans before the building's even started. "The project is getting totally out of hand. We're now confronted with architectural concepts for a $1 million building," he said. It was decided that Maroney would consult with architects from Edward Durrell Stone's office (which designed the library and main fire station) and report again at the next session.

Ballin continued, "Nobody has ever determined what our priorities should be. We're going ahead with a project of huge and unjustifiable price. The city is far behind in the purchase and development of park sites -- the city employees are unhappy over our claim to poverty and yet we overlook everyone except the administration's desire for a splendid new building."

Ralph Miller, property owner of 1.13 acres of land East of Euclid Ave. on the south side of 7th St., succeeded in persuading the council to reconsider the request they previously turned down for two restaurants to be located on the site. Miller reported new evidence as a result of additional investigating conducted by City Engineer Fred Blanchard and property owner Charles Milhiser.

Discussion followed concerning Blanchard's recommendation that there would need to be four lanes of traffic on 7th St. and that curbs would have to be removed and rebuilt. Milhiser presented the positive aspects of the proposal, indicating that it would provide a significant contribution in sales tax to the city. It was decided to continue the matter until the next meeting when there would be a full Council.

Bikeways Planning Meeting Held Here

A major organizational and planning meeting concerning the establishment of a countywide regional bikeways system was held in the Board of Supervisors Chambers last week. Louis C. Penna of the Planning Division for the County Parks and Recreation Department reported that representatives from all the communities involved attended and Supervisor Nancy Smith presided at the meeting.

Penna sent a workbook on

"Proposed County of San Bernardino Bikeways" to each of the 14 members of the bikeways coordinating committees this summer. He's been working closely with Recreation Directors and other interested community residents to help each community come up with viable plans for bike trails in their individual communities -- which will connect regional parks and the different communities in one extensive network.

Upland Chamber Meets Here First Time

Last week's first general membership meeting of the year for the Upland Chamber of Commerce held at Brighams Family Dining was well attended by local businessmen and community leaders. Gene Bello, vice president, organizational affairs division, presided at the breakfast meeting in the absence of Chamber President Dwight Bert who's in Europe.

Featured speaker, Mayor Abner Haldeman, discussed the current controversy between Upland city administrators and city firemen belonging to Upland City Employees' Association. He said that "it's difficult to realize fire fighter's duty hours and working conditions." Upland firemen are seeking a 56-hour work week. They currently have a 62-hour work week, with six of those hours designated as "pay backs."

Haldeman said firemen presently work 35 percent of the week and are requesting to work 32 percent of it while other city employees work 65 percent of the week. He claimed that Upland's firemen were paid the same as others in the West End and in Los Angeles and that granting their request would increase the cost of fire protection in the city from $37,000 a year to $40,000 yearly. He gave a table of projected fire protection cost increases for Upland in the next three years: (72-73) $442,000 for 62-hour week and $480,00 for a 56-hour work week; (73-74) - $503,000 for 62-hour-week and $546,000 for a 56-hour week; (74-75) - $573,000 for 62-hour week and $622,000 for a 56-hour week.

Haldeman feels there "needs to be more information given on all sides of the question." Chamber Committee chairmen give a preview of the year's planned activities. Richard Hield, Special Events, told about a Parade and Band Review sponsored by Upland Town Center Merchants Association to be held October 21 beginning at 10:30 a.m. at 3rd and C streets. Fifteen high school bands will compete for awards.

Dr. Henry Childs Jr., vice-president of instruction at Chaffey College and Chairman of the Chamber's Environmental Management Committee, said his committee will concentrate on all forms of pollution—air, water and people. There will be an emphasis on educating the people and setting up a reference library of literature. Childs said he also hopes to make recommendations concerning local environmental issues and to lobby environmental problems on a state and national level.

Ray Stump, president of Upland Town Center Merchants Association, announced that efforts were being made to make more use of Upland's Town Center

Kiosk. So far special events held at the Kiosk include; a fashion show, high school pep rally and karate and fencing exhibitions. On Saturday, Oct. 28 the Upland Junior Women's Club will hold a Halloween Parade for children at the Kiosk from 1-3 p.m. Stump said his main goal is to "get more community involvement and to sell Upland to surrounding communities."

Hal Bailin, president of the Foothill Freeway Association, said the state highway program was behind where it should be because of a "lock-in" of federal trust funds (funds to be used for national highway systems). He explained that Congress is not appropriating as much money as the Trust Funds will allow. Bailin said "it's extremely important the trust fund be preserved in tact since we are a nation on wheels and depend on wheels." John Meyer, chairman of the Downtown Development Committee,

'ANAHEIM, AZUSA AND CUCAMONGA!'

Clifton Chappell: Remembering Cucamonga Mayor Jack Benny

By PATRICIA REID

Ever since his family first brought him to Cucamonga from southern Missouri in January of 1923, Clifton Chappell hasn't had any desire to leave what he calls "the garden spot of this world." Although he was only 13 at the time, he still recalls the "beautiful warm day they arrived with orange trees full of fruit."

Chappell graduated from Cucamonga's Central Elementary School in 1925--and later helped refurbish the auditorium, classrooms and ground and transform the school into a "Community Center" as President of the Cucamonga Service Club which functioned as the city's governing body from 1945-46.

The Cucamonga Service Club was first organized by 22 Cucamonga businessmen who gathered at the Sycamore Inn in Upland on July 25, 1925. Up until 1949 the Service Club operated in the capacity of a Chamber of Commerce representing the community in dealing with the county government and promoting development in the area.

Chappell's had a variety of distinguished positions in the community--including managing the Cucamonga Water Company for 17 years and working at Thomas Winery for 13 years.

Chappell and his wife Beverly have run A.B.C. Antique shop on Foothill Blvd. in Cucamonga for the past four years. Ms. Chappell "saves almost everything" Chappell said. She's carefully preserved an album of photographs and newspaper clippings on the Cucamonga Service Club and has also saved other material of historical interest on the area.

Chappell is distinguished as being the Service Club president who instigated Jack Benny's radio publicity gimmick in the 40's of being a train caller and calling out "All aboard for Anaheim, Azusa and Cucamonga!" Jack Benny got such an overwhelming response everytime he threw in the train conductor gag that his business manager began to see publicity the potential of using the three towns names and arranged for Benny to be made Honorary Mayor of Anaheim, Azusa and Cucamonga.

Chappell corresponded with Benny and his managers and had the distinguished honor traveling to Hollywood and personally presenting Benny with a Key to the city on January 20, 1946 when he became Honorary Mayor.

A month later, comedians Abbott and Costello wanted in on the honorary Mayor act and a real feud erupted between Benny and Abbott and Costello. Costello claimed the "good people of Cucamonga (which had a mere 500 residents at the time) were getting gyped since they only had 1/3 of a Mayor." He offered to appoint Bud Abbott as honorary police chief for Cucamonga in March, Costello invited all 500 Cucamonga residents to the premiere movie of "Little Giant" (Cucamonga was the locale for the filming) at the United Artists Theater in Hollywood on an "All Cucamonga to see Abbott and Costello" theme. In the movie, Costello played the part of Benny Miller, a country boy from Cucamonga who goes to the Big City to make good as a vacuum cleaner salesman. Costello arranged for free bus transportation and had promised Cucamongans a big reception in their honor in front of the theater. Chappell declared the premiere day a city-wide Holiday and residents packed up and took off for Hollywood and the big time.

Costello referred to the community as "that sleepy little wine-producing town of Cucamonga." In a letter to Costello Chappell said, "Cucamongans were displeased over the manner in which the trip to L.A. to attend the premier was handled."

Mother's Place Out Of Home Too

Linda Goldberg, mother of five, has kicked her guilt feelings. Today, she can come right out and say how it was to spend day-in-day-out baking cookies and wiping noses.

"Frankly, it was boring," maintains the diminutive blond wife of pediatrician, Dr. Albert C. Goldberg.

"When we were first married, I just assumed that when children came along, I'd give up my job because a mother's place was in the home. Then I began to think there were something wrong with me because I wasn't satisfied.

"You wait for that little bundle to grow inside you and expect there'll be instant, 24-hour-a-day mother love. But after the initial months, motherhood lacks a certain stimulation. I was so happy when the four girls were all in school."

'It Isn't Necessary To Spend A Lifetime In The Kitchen'

Then along came Louis, number five. A taffy haired, almost 2-year-old, with an engaging grin, he's in the care of a housekeeper three days a week in the couple's comfortable Larkspur home.

This frees Linda Goldberg to prepare for a nursing career and to take classes at a local college. She also helps out in her husband's office.

But the real evidence of her liberation from the Toll House cookie circuit is her co-authorship with her husband of the new "Ins and Outs of Marriage: A Guide for Parents of the Preschooler."

The guide started out as a pamphlet for Dr. Goldberg's patients. It grew and grew, according to the New York Medical College graduate, into a 122-page paperback that sells for $2.95 and covers types of nursery schools, how to select one, gifted children programs, well baby clinics, supplemental food programs, genetic counseling.

"We read everything written on nursery schools in the past five years," said the 40-year-old pediatrician. "We discussed the subject with education authorities. They were happy to talk, and we were happy to listen. We didn't want other people to make the same mistakes we had in selecting nursery schools, and we knew there were mothers like Linda who could use some help."

What are mistakes parents make in choosing the right preschool? They fail to observe the school in session, for one. "One parent went and clocked smiles one morning. He only counted five. That told him something," Dr. Goldberg said. "Remember that no matter how innovative a program may be on paper, the teacher is the backbone," the physician pointed out.

"Does she have warmth? Or is she simply saccharine? Does she use a silly baby vocabulary? Is she a good listener?"

"If she says, 'Keep your hands off that' or 'That's dirty' too often, those are danger signals that she probably discourages children from exploring and experimenting."

The Goldbergs feel there's a big need for more day care facilities, the pediatrician believes.

"That's where Women's Lib is. Women are realizing it isn't necessary to spend a lifetime in the kitchen after going through all those schools. They want out of the house to do their thing."

Despite the trend, Dr. Goldberg encounters young mothers almost daily in his practice who are guilt-ridden about their desire to find what he calls "their own identities."

Linda Goldberg broke in "I have more time now for my children - and for myself. There is time to listen to Carol play her guitar. I enjoy Louis more, because I have a different kind of time to spend with him. And I don't think I'm crazy any more because I want a life outside the home. What's more, most of my friends agree all the way."

Voss, Winkler Married Here

Mr. Winkler is the son of Mr. and Ms. H. Winkler of Montclair. He, too, is a graduate of Montclair High School and presently attends the University of New Mexico where he is majoring in physical education.

The bride wore a white satin gown with whisper-over applied lace roses with seed pearls and blue rosebuds.

Upland Library Aids Ms. 'Public'

Included among the innovations that make Upland a modern city is a tall white building that looks like a tossup between an artistically designed office building and a casino. The building is the Upland Public Library.

"We've been in the new building just three years," says Ms. Corynne Hanzlek, reader service coordinator, "and we are proud of it. Everyone comments on the architecture. I think it's because of all the windows and arches. The large double-landing staircase is unusual too."

The building, in fact, is designed as much for people as it is for books. It is a large, airy place, filled with light and color. Women, especially, should discover the special services the library offers them.

Ms. Dorothy Farrington is in charge of the Children's Section of the library. This section is on the main level, to the right of the entrance doors. "The Children's Section is for youngsters from pre-school age through the eighth grade," Ms. Farrington said. "Three times a week, we have a story hour for the pre-schoolers, (Tuesdays and Wednesdays at 10 a.m. and Thursdays at 4 p.m.) "I had 27 pre-schoolers today," she remarked. "That's quite a lot. Occasionally the tiny ones can be difficult to handle. They tend to be restless. But they relax once we get into the story."

"During the time story hour is going on, we have a special program for mothers and other interested persons," said Ms. Hanzlek. "We discuss games and things to do with children to keep them amused. We've had a lot of luck with this program and excellent response."

On the lower level, to the left of the stairs, is a section devoted to framed prints and objects d'art. In an exhibit case, there were three statuettes. Two were quite old, the third was a whimsical creation by an early 20th century artist.

"These pieces are lent out, just as we lend books," said Ms. Kathleen Bernath, head of the library's technical services department. "Frequently people find they like their borrowed art pieces so much, they decide they want to buy whatever they have."

Ms. Hanzlek explained it was the same way with prints. "We have some unusual prints here," she said. "Some are reproduced from the works of old masters, others are modern pieces. Frequently a woman will come into the library and will take out a picture she says she doesn't like. But she wants to hang it in her home to expose her family to a different concept. Often, this same woman will later take out another similar work, or will buy the original she took out."

The Upland Library also has books on home decorations, current fashions, child care, personal health and hygiene, and works on the overall female experience.

Mix this with interested attention on the part of the library staff, and you have a pleasant place to browse, read, look at art work or just sit down and leaf through a magazine.

The Upland Library is one of the city's "new wave" endeavors. The innovation seems to be working well.

Marriage Announced

Cindy Farrin and Duane Gremminger were married recently in the Chapel of the Bells in Ontario, tarlo.

The former Ms. Farrin is the daughter of Mr. Jack E. Farrin of West Covina and Ms. Marsha Farrin of Upland. She is a Chaffey High School Graduate.

Ms. Gremminger is the son of Mr. and Ms. D. Gremminger. He is a graduate of Hemet High School.

Honor attendant was Ms. L. Holvey of Springfield, Ill.

Best man was Wayne Gremminger. Ushers were Mark Crow and Roger Hallet. Ring bearer was John Farrin.

Poster Contest

Women's Club Offers Support

The Cucamonga-Alta Loma Junior Women's Club will again support local fire districts in a joint effort for the Fire Prevention Week Poster Contest.

The annual contest is held for fourth, fifth and sixth grade students in all Cucamonga and Alta Loma elementary schools. The contest will be sponsored during National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 8-14.

The Juniors will hold a bake sale in order to raise money for the purchase of savings bonds. The bonds will be on sale from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in front of Sunrize Market, corner of Baseline and Carnelian in Cucamonga.

Another safety project being undertaken by the club is the block mothers' program. Several members already have filled out applications. Others are urged to do so.

Cancer Info Needed

The San Bernardino County Unit of the American Cancer Society is assisting in a statewide effort to gather information about the re-employment experiences of patients who have been cured of cancer.

Ms. Alice J. Wilkins, executive director of the Unit has said that a blue-ribbon committee of experts from the fields of business, government and organized labor has been appointed by the Society to try to facilitate the re-entry of cured patients into the working force.

She said that while many such patients have experienced no difficulty finding re-employment, others are reported to have been screened out of jobs because of their medical histories.

Ms. Wilkins said that the fact-finding committee needs information about both favorable and unfavorable job-seeking experiences, with the hope of adapting the lessons learned to successful future application. It is interested in hearing from employers, too.

She said all California units of the Society have been asked to refer to the committee for study and evaluation whatever local information they may receive. The study is statewide in scope. The committee, made up of prom-

Macaroni And Cheese With The 'Accent' On Italian

LITTLE ROME -- Italian green beans, oregano, tomato slices and a sprinkling of Parmesan cheese combine to give this classic casserole, macaroni and cheese, an Italian twist of taste.

Macaroni and Cheese -- this classical casserole goes continental when you add a pinch of zesty Italian flavor.

Begin on familiar ground, simply cook the macaroni according to the package directions. Then the fun starts. In melted butter, blend a zippy sauce combining flour, salt, and pepper with spicy oregano. Milk creams the combination while contributing important nutrients like protein to the basic white sauce.

You can't say macaroni without mentioning cheese -- specifically Cheddar. Children especially love the sharp golden good taste of natural Cheddar blended into the thick creamy sauce. Take care not to boil the cheese sauce if you must return the mixture to heat to completely melt the Cheddar.

Italian green beans give a delicious as well as nutritious twist to this classic casserole idea. They flavorfully complement the cheese while providing a zesty taste contrast to the macaroni. And these Italian beans also add important green vegetable vitamins to the protein provided by dairy products.

For the ultimate continental touch, adorn the casserole with juicy red tomato slices, crunchy bread crumbs, and sharp, salty Parmesan, the Italian flavored cheese. Serve with wedges of lettuce, a dressing of vinegar and oil, and a pitcher of cool, refreshing milk.

Macaroni and Cheese Italian

1 package (7 oz.) elbow macaroni
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon oregano, crumbled
Dash of pepper
3 cups milk
3 cups (12 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 package (10 oz.) frozen Italian green beans
1/2 teaspoon salt
12 or 16 thin tomato slices (about 2 medium)
1 tablespoon dry bread crumbs, buttered
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain. Meanwhile in a 2-quart saucepan melt butter. Blend in flour, 1 teaspoon salt, oregano and pepper. Cook over low heat until mixture is smooth. Remove from heat. Stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in cheese until melted. If necessary, return to low heat to finish melting cheese. (Do not boil.)

Yield: 4 1/2 cups sauce. Combine uncooked green beans with macaroni. In a 11 1/2x7 1/2x1 1/2-inch baking dish place half of macaroni mixture; sprinkle over 1/4 teaspoon salt. Pour over one-half cheese sauce, arrange half of the tomato slices on top of sauce. Repeat macaroni, salt and cheese sauce layers. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven for 30 minutes. Arrange remaining tomato slices on top; sprinkle tomatoes with bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese. Bake an additional 5 minutes. Makes 6-8 servings.

Beer With Fondue

1 1/2 lbs. beef tenderloin, London Broil or Porterhouse cut in 3/4" cubes.

Marinade: 1 cup beer, 1 tsp. minced onion, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1 1/2 tsp. vinegar, 1/4 tsp. lemon juice, 1 clove mashed garlic, 1/4 tsp. oregano, 1/4 tsp. thyme. Combine ingredients and pour over cubed meat. Soak for 2 to 3 hours.

Pour approximately 2 inches salad oil into fondue pot and heat on top of stove. Transfer to fondue burner when oil is hot. Drain marinade from beef just before serving. Spear meat with fondue forks, cooking in hot oil until desired doneness. Yield: 4 servings.

Sauces for Beef 'n Beer Fondue:

Beer-Onion Sauce: 3 tbsp. dry onion soup mix, 1/2 cup beer, 1 tbsp. prepared mustard, 1 cup sour cream. Combine onion soup and beer, let stand 5 minutes. Add mustard and sour cream and heat thoroughly in small saucepan. Yield: approximately 1 1/2 cups.

Cheese 'n Beer Fondue: 1 tbsp. flour; 1 clove garlic (halved); 3/4 cup beer; 8 oz. process Swiss cheese, shredded (2 cups); 4 oz. natural Gruyere cheese, shredded (1 cup). Rub inside of saucepan with garlic, then discard garlic. Heat beer slowly. Mix flour with cheeses and gradually add to beer, stirring constantly until mixture is thick and bubbling. Transfer to fondue pot. Dip with French bread. Yield 5 to 6 servings.

Beer-Radish Sauce: One 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened; 2 1/2 tsp. prepared horseradish, 2 tbsp. beer. Whip cream cheese and horseradish with beer until fluffy.

Imported Beef-- How It's Inspected

With the temporary lifting of all meat import quotas, in mind, several directors of the California Cattlemen's Association and other members of the Beef Industry recently viewed the dockside inspection procedures of unloading and inspection of foreign meat at Pier 50 in San Francisco. Inspection is conducted by the USDA.

Prior to unloading her cargo of Australian Beef, the freighter, Cap Norte, flying under the flag of Malaysia, stopped briefly in Honolulu, and Los Angeles for discharging meat.

Make Your Meat Money Go Further

Would you like to buy steaks at 84 cents per pound? Save $2.50 or more when buying steaks, roasts, and stew meat? Knock $20 off your monthly meat bill? One way to make your meat money go further is to buy a large center-cut chuck roast and cut it into two, three, or four meals before cooking, says

Sharon Higgins, home advisor at the University of California Agricultural Extension.

Select an 8-pound center-cut chuck roast or a 7-bone chuck roast. Buy the chuck roasts when they are advertised on weekend sales. Since most markets do not have such a large roast, ask your butcher to cut an 8-pound roast especially for you.

The meat in a chuck roast varies in tenderness. The meat around the blade bone can be cut into cubes for stew, shish kabobs, or casseroles. The center portion can be a boneless roast. If this part has enough fat mixed with the lean meat, it can be oven roasted at a low temperature in an uncovered pan. If this portion is very lean, it should be pot roasted.

Economical steaks with a well-developed flavor can be cut from the tender section along the backbone, adds Ms. Higgins. Cut away the bones, remove the excess fat, and slice three or four steaks.

United Fund Campaign Gets Underway With Strong Local Support

A 52 percent increase in employee giving at the five pilot firms of the 1972-73 West End United Fund campaign was announced at the campaign kick-off luncheon. In the absence of Charles West, manager of Abitibi, Pilot Division Chairman, Frank Lesinsky, manager of Otis Elevator and 72-73 West End United Fund Campaign chairman, accepted the reports from the company pilot campaign chairmen. Col. Cecil Sanders, C.O. of the California Air National Guard, Ontario, reporting for Capt. Charles Wolf, reported $3,488, an increase of 82 percent over last year; Larry Noble, Personnel Manager of J.C. Penney, Montclair, and company chairman for the J.C. Penney Associates campaign, reported a total of $3,816 for a per capita giving of $25.44. This is a 90 percent increase over last year's giving; Andy Conahan, General Electric Aviation Service Division, Ontario Airport, reporting for Sharon Adams, company chairman, noted a $2,000 increase over last year's gift, making this year's gift $10,164 -- with more still to come; Cliff Ingle, of American Can Co., reported for Kent Williams, personnel manager and company chairman, that American Can employees had the best campaign in their history--this year's giving was twice as high as ever before and seven times more than last year. The total raised to date is $792; Paul Mattoon, personnel manager of Fasson Products and company chairman, reported that the employees of Fasson almost doubled last year's efforts -- going from $970 last year to $1,727 this year and Mr. Mattoon further stated the Fasson Corporation will match the employees' gift to the West End United Fund. Lesinsky thanked the chairmen for their reports, stating that the total they reported today was $19,987.

San Bernardino College of Medical and Dental Assistants has been granted full approval for its Medical Assistant program by the Council on Medical Education, American Medical Association in cooperation with the American Association of Medical Assistants. According to Dene Murray, executive director of the AAMA, there are only four fully approved medical assisting programs in proprietary medical and dental assisting schools in the nation. One is in Indianapolis, one in Los Angeles, one in Long Beach and the San Bernardino school.

Besides the AMA full approval of the Medical Assisting program, the San Bernardino College of Medical and Dental Association of Trade and Technical Schools, NATTS is the standard setting agency for private schools, recognized by the U.S. Department of Education, and admitting those schools which give evidence of subscribing to quality education, administrative standards and ethical practices.

Creativity Means (Is) Do-It-Yourself

Teachers are just beginning to understand how to foster creativity, and not all teachers are agreed on the ways! For instance, one does not necessarily learn new facts about a problem, it may be better to look at the problem in a new way. That means to be creative we must change our way of thinking.

The person who is gifted with many great talents may have so many things to do that his mind is always cluttered. He has abilities, but creativity also depends on clear thinking.

George Abbott, the Broadway playwright, said that an unhappy childhood, with its needs for creating words of fantasy is creative.

Makes sense. A child wants to express himself, and does not have the words. He feels deeply about matters and is prevented from saying what he wants to say. So what does he do? He develops that ability to express himself.

That unhappiness has another way of developing creativity. The child wants to change his condition, so he studies his situation, decides what he would desire for himself and then goes to work to improve his condition and in doing so he develops his own ability to be creative.

Is the highly creative person happy? Not necessarily, for the ones who are the most creative are anxious to express themselves, they are not satisfied with the situation, they struggle, often against great odds without being successful.

The really creative person wants to do his own thing, he does not want anyone to do his dirty work, for doing that job is his creative joy.

Do schools always develop creativity? Not always, for the really creative person sees things in a different way. He may buck what he calls the "establishment" because he cannot understand the need for group discipline in crowded schools.

Most successful persons agree that the young person who would be creative must become that way mostly through self-discipline and the cultivation of his own abilities and talents.

Creativity, they say, is a do-it-yourself job!

The teacher who is best at developing creativity must permit the student to have as much freedom as is labeled as "permissiveness."

It is a fact that in the crowded class the efficiency for the entire group is more important than untied permissiveness for single individuals.

The student who wants to go "way out" in the classroom is often putting a burden on the teacher and on the school. The school's real value lies in teaching discipline, skills, and understandings.

To be really creative requires wisdom, and wisdom comes hard to young people. Wisdom comes after failure, so some failure is a good thing.

Henry Miller, the playwright, said that the creative person makes himself successful through his being "stubborn..."

steadfast... devoted... with complete unswerving devotion to his chosen role."

One who is creative, should be happy, for happiness depends on doing what one most wants to do, and being successful at it. The creative person should be the first to know himself and his desires, he would know what he needs to do, what he can do, and somewhere, he will find the happy medium which will lead to a reasonable amount of happiness.

But isn't life a compromise anyway?

--William McHenry

Ecology Influences Home Furnishings

Home furnishings are beginning to reflect our new interest in nature and ecology. Previews of new fabrics show lots of linen, raw silk, nubby cottons and wools in "earth" colors.

The Better Floors Council thinks the perfect complement to furnishings made of these materials is a floor of vinyl asbestos tile. Tile is made in replica of natural products--pebble, marble, stone, travertine, slate, brick and wood--and is available in many neutral shades and lovely, soft pastels that are ideal for this latest decorating fashion. Of course, if you want a floor covering to contrast with the other furnishings, resilient tile also comes in bright hues from clear around the color wheel.

Other home decorating trends spotted recently include a marked Oriental influence in both design and color, lots of florals and smaller geometrics. Texture is becoming increasingly important, and here again vinyl asbestos tile is ready with embossed patterns ranging from Moorish tile to brick to lace.

Writers: Pursue Loves In Life

Author Ray Bradbury cited the need for a writer to steadfastly pursue the "loves of his life" — be they movies, the classics or chemistry — in order to achieve maximum literary potential. This was the theme of his keynote address at the Third Annual Squaw Valley Community of Writers Conference, held in Squaw Valley recently.

Sponsored jointly by the California Arts Commission and the Squaw Valley Community of Writers, the conference featured workshops, conferences and panel discussions with some of the nation's outstanding writers and with 75 student writers from all parts of California.

The full-time staff of nearly 10 professional writers included such well-known figures as Barnaby Conrad, Herbert Gold, Galway Kinnell, John Leggett, Philip Levine, Lorenzo Semple, Jr., Max Steele, Susan Terris and Kirsten Amundsen.

Events during the week included a major poetry reading; a dramatic reading of a student play by members of the American Conservatory Theater; a special showing of a award-winning film, "Pretty Poison," and a commentary by its author, Lorenzo Semple Jr.; and a preview of a new play based on the life of Ambrose Bierce, by Ron Thorsen, author of "Mother Earth."

Another feature of the conference was the appearance of several publishers, literary agents and magazine editors who discussed the practical aspects of the "literary market place."

Directors of the Community of Writers are Blair Fuller, novelist and editor of The Paris Review; Oakley Hall, novelist and director of the Program in Writing at the University of California at Irvine; and David Perlman, Science Editor of the San Francisco Chronicle.

The Squaw Valley Community of Writers is already planning for its fourth annual writing conference next summer.

Novelist To Lecture Here

Equadorean novelist and dramatist Jorge Icaza will give a lecture in Spanish at 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 9 at Pattison Hall on the Scripps College campus.

The lecture, sponsored by the Spanish faculty of Scripps, is open to the public free of charge.

Now Professor of Equadorean and Andean literature at the Andean Study and Research Center of the University of New Mexico at Quito, Ecuador, Icaza is considered an expert on the Indian problems of the Andean region.

Icaza received a Bachelierato from the Instituto Nacional Mejia, spent three years studying medicine at the Universidad Central del Ecuador and then studied dramatic art at the Conservatorio Nacional. During his early career, a number of his plays were produced by the Compania Dramatica Nacional and he organized several theater groups. His first book of prose fiction, Barro de la sierra, was published in 1933. His Huasipungo won the First Prize for the Spanish-American Novel Award and his En las calles received the First Prize for the National Novel of Ecuador.

For a time, Icaza was Director of the National Library of Ecuador. In 1959 he became Professor of History of Theater and Literature at the Casa de la Cultura Ecuatoriana, the National Institution of Fine Arts, which he helped found. He also served as the Cultural Attache of the Equadorean Embassy in Buenos Aires. Icaza has traveled widely in Latin America, Europe, Mexico, China and the Soviet Union.

Artist To Offer Painting Class Here

An award winning artist whose work is included in the permanent collections of such places as the Metropolitan Museum of Art, UCLA, the University of Iowa and the Art Institute of Chicago will offer an evening painting class for interested members of the community beginning Oct. 9 at Scripps College.

Alan Blizzard, professor of art at Scripps, will teach both traditional and contemporary approaches to painting using all media, including oil, acrylic and watercolor. The class will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. on Mondays in the painting studio at Seal Court, adjacent to Lang Art Galleries at Scripps. It will continue through Nov. 27.

Studio facilities, including easels, will be provided but students supply their own painting materials. The fee for eight classes is $40. Blizzard's most recent one-man show was held at Lang Galleries last February. He is represented in the current Scripps Faculty Art Show at Lang.

Those wishing to enroll in the painting class should contact Ms. S. Hedegaard, Scripps art secretary, at 714-626-8511, Ext. 2973, or attend the opening class. Enrollment will be limited.

EVERY DOLLAR YOU SAVE IS A BOOST TO THE ECONOMY.

Some people would have you believe that saving money is a disservice to the economy of this country. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Your money is loaned out to build new homes and churches and shopping centers, and low-cost multiple dwellings.

And that means jobs. Jobs for carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, road-builders, painters and a host of other occupations. Jobs for the people who cut the timber, make the bricks, manufacture the plumbing materials and paint.

The list is endless. It goes on and on. Your savings working to build the economy while they are building for your future.

It has been estimated that every dollar provided by a Savings and Loan creates four dollars of new economic activity. As a result, the $38 billion we loaned in mortgages last year generated $152 billion in the economy.

Do something good for yourself. Open an account at a Savings and Loan Association. We'll put your money to work—for you and for the country.

Frank Capra Film Festival Scheduled Here

Music Prof. Dies Here

A Frank Capra Film Festival, honoring the Sicilian peasant who became a famous Hollywood director and who won three Academy Awards for his film direction, will be held Oct. 10, 17, 24 and 31, as a benefit for the Pomona College Theater Arts Program. Each performance will start at 7:30 p.m. Six of Capra's films, covering the period from 1926 to 1944, will be shown during the five-week festival and Capra himself will attend the Oct. 24 performance of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," a film which features James Stewart and was the last Capra triumph for Columbia Pictures and the late Harry Cohn, the autocratic ruler of the studio.

Capra, who lives in La Quinta, near Palm Springs, will be introduced at the conclusion of the Oct. 24 film by Dr. David Alexander, president of Pomona College, and the veteran director will speak briefly. Capra is one of the few men in the film industry who worked through the Golden Age of films and was one of the few directors to span both the silent and sound eras.

A long-time friend of Pomona College and its theater programs, Capra was a frequent visitor to the campus during the earlier years of his career. Two of his three children are graduates of the college, Frank Capra Jr., having graduated in 1957 and Lucille, now Ms. W. G. Bruch, getting her B.A. degree in 1959. In 1964 the senior Capra addressed a weekly assembly program for Pomona College students, in which he described the motion picture industry in Russia.

All of the Capra Festival films will be shown in the Garrison Theater, located on the corner of Dartmouth Avenue and 10th Street, Claremont. Tickets for individual programs will be $2 for adults and $1.50 for students and may be obtained at the box office in Bridges Auditorium. Tickets for the entire series of five programs are priced at $7.50.

The opening night of the Frank Capra Film Festival, Oct. 3, will offer "The Strong Man," a 1926 silent production which had Harry Langdon, the baby-faced vaudeville villain who Capra called "one of the world's superior comedians," and "Arsenic and Old Lace," a 1944 production which featured Cary Grant, William G. (Doc) Blanchard, professor of music and college organist emeritus, will play the organ for "The Strong Man," and will be the projectionist for the other films. Total running time for the two films will be three hours and 16 minutes.

The festival will feature "It Happened One Night," which features Clark Gable, Claudette Colbert, Walter Connolly and Roscoe Karns, and will be shown Oct. 10. This 1934 comedy, conceived in a Palm Springs barbershop, made film history. Often called "a classic of modern cinema," the film was the first to use an idea from Chaucer—a busload of people.

"It Happened One Night" was produced on a budget of $325,000, a four-week schedule, and winter exterior shooting. Capra has called the film an "accident," but it was the first motion picture to sweep the Academy Awards in all five major divisions: best picture, director, actor, actress and screenplay.

Later, Capra was to observe "I had scaled the Mount Everest of Filmlandia."

This was the film which also brought wide recognition to Capra for his ability to take the old classic four of show business—hero, heroine, villain, comedian—and cut it down to three, by combining hero and comedian into one person.

"Lost Horizon" was the first Capra film in which he departed from the American idiom. The story line concerns an Englishman who was chosen to head the idyllic community of Shangri-La, hidden in the remoteness of the Himalayas. Ronald Coleman plays the Englishman. Others in the supporting cast include Jane Wyatt, H. B. Warner, Thomas Mitchell and Edward Everett Horton.

The fourth Capra Festival offering, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," which will have Capra in attendance and speaking from the stage, was the last Capra triumph at Columbia pictures. Produced in 1939, it was the year that Capra was serving his fourth term as president of the Academy and his first term as president of the Screen Directors Guild.

The story for "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" was a duplication of the villain-hero format used a year earlier in "You Can't Take It With You." Again, in the Capra style of the period, the drama was keyed on an agonizing inner conflict. The villain-hero, played by James Stewart, concerns a "bubblehead," a young idealist who was appointed as an interim U.S. Senator from Montana, after the incumbent died in office.

Stewart and Jean Arthur, the female lead, "were a made-to-order natural team," according to Capra's biography, "The Name Above the Title." Here was a movie which blended the simon-pure idealist, and cynical, fed-up-with-politics Washington secretary with a dormant heart of gold. One of the film's famous scenes involves a filibuster in which the young senator attacks machine politics and the special interests.

The fifth and final week of the Capra Film Festival at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31, will present the 1938 movie, "You Can't Take It With You," with Stewart, Miss Arthur, Edward Arnold, Lionel Barrymore and H.B. Warner, in some of the top roles.

In this movie which gave Capra his third Best-Director and his second Best-Picture Oscars, the story comes from the George S. Kaufman-Moss Hart comedy about the eccentric Vanderhof family. It was the first time in movie history that $200,000 was paid for a story property, but many critics said the Capra treatment outdid the original Broadway play.

Arrangements for the five-week Capra Film Festival at Pomona College are being made by a committee which includes Dr. Frederick Sontag, professor of philosophy, and Morton C. Johnson, director of annual giving, as cochairmen. Other members include Ms. D. Alexander, Ms. E. Wilson Lyon, Ms. O. B. Christian.

Dr. William G. Tapsfield, professor of music for nine years at California Baptist College, died recently in Upland after a long illness.

Born June 10, 1921 in Salt Lake City, Tapsfield graduated magna cum laude from Biola College in 1952. He earned the masters degree in 1959 and doctors degree in 1969 from Claremont College.

Tapsfield served Cal Baptist as full professor of music and chairman of the division of fine arts. He originated and directed Brass Ensemble at the college. Before coming to his faculty position at CBC, Tapsfield was associate professor of music at Upland College.

Societies in which Tapsfield held membership include Phi Alpha Chi, honorary scholarship society, and National Association of College Wind and Percussion Teachers. He was also a member of First Baptist Church, Upland.

Dr. Tapsfield is survived by his widow Mildred and two sons, Marvin and Mervin.

Services were held Oct. 3 at First Baptist Church, Upland. Roy Buckelew, pastor, officiated. College personnel participating in the service included Stephen Carleton, academic dean; Brass Ensemble; and Trouveres.

David Mejia Of Alta Loma Awarded Blatnick Award

Upland High Over Alta Loma High, 22-9

Upland High got its revenge, but did it the hard way. The Highlanders avenged last season's upset loss to Alta Loma with a 22-9 win over the Braves last Friday. But the game was closer than the final score indicates.

Upland started strongly by tackling Alta Loma running back Mike Gipson in the end zone for a safety in the first quarter.

The Highlanders then extended their advantage to 9-0 when quarterback Mike Scharbrough connected with end Mike Lar-kins for a 16-yard touchdown.

However, the Braves fought back in the second quarter, earning a safety of their own while scoring its only touchdown on a 15-yard pass play involving quarter- back Jaime Broeker and Kula Kuresa.

Alta Loma dominated the third quarter with a fine defensive effort, but the powerful Highlanders finally busted loose in the fourth quarter when Scharbrough found halfback Rocky Chapman in the end zone for an 18-yard touchdown and scored on an eight yard jaunt to wrap up the contest.

Upland will open San Antonio League play against Pomona, while Alta Loma takes on explosive San Dimas.

Meanwhile, Montclair was also seeking revenge for a loss last season to Ontario, but the Jaguars proved to be just as tough this year, winning 20-6.

Marty Verduco got Ontario on the scoreboard first with a touch- down, but Montclair's Filbert Gonzales evened it up with a 36-yard TD burst.

Ontario finally iced the game in the third quarter with Jefferson scoring the game's final touch- down from the five-yard line.

Twelve year old David Mejia of Alta Loma never dreamed his name would actually be called a couple weeks ago at the annual Citrus Little League Awards pro- gram held at Alta Loma Elemen- tary School. . . especially since he's considered "small for his age" and played in the Minor League not the Major League.

His managers didn't let any- thing enter into their strong con- viction that Mejia was this sea- son's outstanding player. He was selected for the Jamie Blatnick award because he displayed the qualities of sportsmanship, ea- gerness, cooperation and general all-around good citizenship.

Anton Blatnick, Cucamonga's Postmaster, first established the award in 1956 when his son, Jam- ie Blatnick, a 12-year old Little Leaguer died, Blatnick who was the first president of Alta Loma-Cucamonga-Citrus Little League and a staunch fan ever since they established the Jamie Blat- nick award in honor of his son.

Blatnick presented Mejia with the two-foot golden perpetual tro- phy with engraved names of past recipients of the award at the awards program on Sept. 20. It will remain in his possession for two months and then will be dis- played the rest of the year at the Cucamonga Post Office. A smal- ler replica of the trophy is given to the annual winner for his per- sonal memento.

Painter, who's manager of the Minor A Division, explained that this category was just established this year to enable older boys to play who didn't make the Major Division. So, Mejia was the first player from the Minor Leagues to ever win the award. He's played in Citrus Little League for two years.

Mejia said he remembers the game against the Indians (first place team in the league) best-- His team--the Pirates won 6-9 and Mejia got the winning hit. He plays first base.

David is the foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hatfield, 9211 Cleito Street in Alta Loma. The Hatfields also have 2 girls and another boy. Hatfield coached and managed Little League teams in West Covina, where they used to live, and David loved to accom- pany him.

Painter said the Citrus Little League grew from 260 boys reg- istering last year to 342 register- ing this year.

Sponsorship For Asking

Sponsorship in the American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO), one of the fastest grow- ing youth groups, is for the ask- ing.

A vigorous campaign is now under way in the East End Dis- trict, which comprises Upland, Alta Loma, Etiwanda, Cucam- onga, Ontario, Montclair, Chino Guasti and Mountain View.

Last season District 3 fielded 13 teams. This year expecta- tions run as high as 35 teams.

Sponsorship will help defray the cost of outfitting teams, and the fee is minimal.

Coaches, referees, equipment managers and administrators are also needed in the program, ac- cording to spokesman Frits Ro- senvelt, who may be reached at 983-8902. Lou Rose (982- 8288) will also provide further information.

Chaffey Loses To San Berdo

Chaffey College got another fine effort from its offense last Saturday night, but the defense fell apart in the Panthers' 35-25 loss to San Bernardino.

Chaffey rolled up 392 yards of total offense, but San Bernar- dino bettered that with a 409- yard performance and, as the scoreboard indicated, more points.

The Panthers scored in each of the four quarters. Randy Fer- rell bolted over from the 10-yard line in the first quarter, while quarterback Ray Alexander scampered 19 yards for the third quarter score. Passes of 51 and 65 yards from Alexander to Bob Young accounted for the Chaffey touchdowns in the second and fourth quarters.

The Circus Is Coming!

Posters Recall Life Under The Canopy

"As long as there's babies, there'll be circuses," P.T. Barnum once retorted to a remark that the masses would tire of the circus spectacle.

The circus is alive and well today! But once enjoying the distinction of being "the only spectacle going," today the circus, as the father of mass entertainment, must share its audience with its offspring.

These include such events as outdoor bowl musicals and variety shows, the rock concerts, the Olympics, ice shows and many other attractions. Even the extravagant television variety special can be linked nostalgically with "the roar of the crowd and the smell of the greasepaint."

Recalling the spirit of The Big Show in the late 19th century, a special collection of period circus posters is being presented by People's Gallery at numerous shopping centers throughout the Pomona Valley through Nov. 12.

The display traces the drama and the trauma of sawdust and canvas with 18 giant poster reproductions, colorfully highlighting some of the "greatest shows on earth."

All of 90 year vintage, dazzling poster pieces, are reprinted in full color and are displayed on three sided "triosks."

Heralded as such peerless prodigies of physical phenomena as General Tom Thumb, the Quaker Giant and Giantess, Siamese Twins and Wild Men of Borneo.

Selections shown also ballyhoo such attractions as exotic wild animals, Bluebeard's Chamber, the Spanish Fleet, Elephant Brass Band, Grand Water Circus terminating in daring dives, the Dip of Death and automobile antics by Fearless Maurice de Tiers.

Americans of the 19th century were generally over-serious, hard working, frowned on the frivolous and considered the theatre sinful. Barnum, as the forerunner, and then together with Bailey, set the stage which was to change the attitude of the nation.

The partnership began in 1880 and continued to Barnum's death.

Historically the phenomena of the circus not only left an imprint on the world of entertainment, but even on advertising, printing and the English language.

The circus, and particularly the world of P. T. Barnum, has contributed a number of words such as "Jumbo," which referred to the famous elephant, and the phrase, "the bandwagon," which alluded to the circus bandwagon, a gawdy vehicle used for transporting musicians in pre-performance circus parades.

Babies are still being born-- and the show must go on!

SPECTACLE -- Recalling the world's largest, grandest, best amusement medium -- the circus -- an exhibition of 19th century "Big Top" posters opens on-the-mall of Southland shopping centers through Nov. 12. Among the 18 ancient vintage posters which have been colorfully reproduced and displayed in pedestrian scaled triosks, are those pictured above, illustrating the historical significance of the circus as the father of mass entertainment.

Earthquake!

Be Sure To Run When You Hear The Rumble Here

Where and when the next earthquake will strike is an urgent problem being tackled by scientists up and down California, according to State Geologist Wesley G. Bruer.

"We're a long way from making reliable predictions of the time, the place, and the magnitude," Bruer said, "but there are hopeful signs." Among the most promising of the current research are efforts in measuring "crustal movement", or changes in the shape of the earth itself. Crustal movement includes strain, or bending of the crust, and actual fault slippage, which scientists consider the proximate cause of earthquakes.

Methods of measuring this change are varied. "There are instruments deployed that measure tiny amounts of strain, fault slippage or creep, compression, and extension," Bruer explained. "Very sensitive instruments for measuring tilting have, on a few occasions, picked up small distortions of the earth's crust prior to earthquakes. In fact, some young students were able to measure ground changes before each aftershock of the San Fernando earthquake with a carpenter's level."

So that all workers in the field and all those interested in crustal movement measurements may know what research is being carried out, the state, through its chief earthquake research agency, the California Division of Mines and Geology, of which Bruer is head, has issued Special Publication 37, entitled Crustal movement investigations in California, their history, data, and significance.

Roger W. Greensfelder, a seismologist for the division, compiled the publication. It lists the locations, dates of installations and periods of observation, responsible agencies, and instruments employed in the measurement of crustal deformation in California.

Priced at $2, the report consists of a 25-page text. Be sure to include 5 percent state sales tax.

Social Security Enriching Crooks

"If you are a Senior Citizen, you should beware of callers who phone and offer the latest information about Medicare," according to Edward H. Rodriguez, district manager, Pomona Social Security Office.

Rodriguez continued, "Many high pressure salesmen force unwanted goods and services on older people by using this as a door opener. The number of complaints we have been receiving has increased over the last few weeks at an alarming rate."

"Usually, these salesmen tread a very thin line between legality and illegality and are able to remain on the right side of the law," Rodriguez said. "It is illegal to impersonate a federal officer or agent. However, some of these salesmen are licensed by the state and or city or county governments. Because of this they sometimes say, 'I have been appointed by the government to explain the latest changes in Medicare.'"

"Once the salesman has gained access to your home, he reveals the true purpose of his visit. Quite often, because of insistence and persuasiveness, he is able to have contracts signed which obligate you to payments or you find you have purchased something for which you have no use."

Rodriguez recommended the following procedure in handling calls of this nature:

1. Obtain the name of the caller and ask him for the name of the government agency for which he works.
2. Obtain the address and telephone number of the office who employs the caller.
3. Verify the caller's employment with the government agency involved. Social Security Administration.
4. All employees of government agencies carry identification. Always ask people who call in person at your home for this identification.
5. Above all, don't panic.

The Social Security Office in Pomona is located at 445 East Holt Avenue, telephone 714/629-4021.

Pinpointing Abnormal Cells

Agreed that cigarette smoking causes cancer in some people, but why? Why do miners contract pneumoconiosis and life-guard skin cancer?

These questions are all part of one larger question: How does our environment cause cancer?

The University of Southern California School of Medicine has been awarded a $161,266 grant by the John A. Hartford Foundation of New York to continue studies of this question -- the mechanisms of environmental carcinogenesis.

There have been several suggestions that the factor for making a normal cell cancerous is latent in all cells. With 75 per cent of the population, however, this factor is inactive.

In an effort to determine the exact point at which a cell exposed to carcinogens becomes abnormal, Dr. O'Brien has been experimenting with human cancer cells and with human cells from people who have a greater likelihood of developing cancer than others.

"Families Anonymous" is a program of awareness and understanding for people concerned about a possible drug problem in a relative or friend. Learning that a son or daughter has become involved with drugs can be a shattering experience. According to Families Anonymous members, the actions of shocked panic-stricken parents are often more destructive than helpful; yet talking with other parents, spouses, etc., who have gone through similar experiences helps to clear the path to understanding and improved family communication.

Families Anonymous members say that the new perspective obtained through participation in this self-help program has enabled many family members to trade their fear and frustration for a new peace of mind and has often been a prelude to the drug user's own recovery.

Drunk Laws Confused

Most California drivers are still ignorant of the basic facts of drunk-driving laws according to an 18-month study by the California Traffic Safety Foundation.

"For the past year-and-a-half we have bombarded the motoring public with the correct answers to four simple, but important, questions dealing with California's 'implied consent' and 'presumptive limits' laws," said Foundation Director J.A. Rude. "Opinion polls on these same questions indicate no substantial change in the public's level of knowledge."

The project was financed by a grant from the State of California's Office of Traffic Safety and the Federal National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. It utilized newspapers, radio, and television public service time. "Releases were mailed approximately once a month to nearly 1,000 media outlets throughout the state," Rude said. "We also produced a 30 minute T.V. documentary narrated by Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., radio spot announcements by John Forsythe and Lawrence Welk, and two million brochures." The celebrities and news media donated their time and space as a public service.

"Cooperation from media was excellent," Rude stated, "but evidently it takes a much heavier saturation of time and space to reach eleven million drivers."

The California Legislature passed an "implied consent" law in 1966 and a "presumptive limits" law in 1969. These two laws are now the foundation of drunk driving law enforcement in the State. "Implied consent" is aimed at securing chemical test evidence from arrested drivers. You may refuse the test, but your refusal automatically results in a six month license suspension.

"Presumptive limits" specifies what the results of the test mean in court. With a blood-alcohol level of 0.10 percent higher a driver is presumed under the influence of alcohol.

As part of the Foundation study, Field Research Corporation of San Francisco was retained to poll the public knowledge of these laws. Scientifically selected samples were personally interviewed in October, 1970 before any information had been released. Additional polls were conducted by Field in November, 1971, in the middle of the campaign, and a final poll was made in August, 1972. According to Neilson, "This is possibly the first time an attempt has been made to scientifically measure the results of a public service campaign in this field."

Questions from the polls with Neilson's comments follow: QUESTION #1: "If a person arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol, must he submit to a chemical test to determine his blood-alcohol level or can he refuse to take such a test?"

Half the people did not know they could refuse, his percentage remained constant in all polls. Forty-four percent the initial poll and forty-two in subsequent polls knew they could refuse. "These figures take importance in relationship to the next question," Neilson said.

QUESTION #2: (Asked of those who knew they could refuse or who answered "Don't know.") If he refuses to take the test, which one of several things is most likely to happen?

Approximately one person in five (21 percent) thought they would be free to wait trial for drunk driving. They did not know they would automatically be suspended from driving for six months nor did they know they would go to jail unless bail was arranged. The belief that drunk driving arrests are handled in much the same way a minor violation could be a significant finding," Neilson said.

Almost the same percentage (20 percent across all polls) knew the correct answer: The driver's license would be automatically suspended.

Child Neglect Is A Growing Problem

Ms. H. lives at home with her three small children. Her husband deserted her a year ago. Her feelings of inadequacy began to increase. The bills went unpaid, the house was unkempt, the children were badly clothed and poorly fed. Ms. H. drowned her sorrows in alcohol. Her children became the victims of child neglect.

This is just one case of child neglect. The Child Protection Services and social workers handle as many as 120-130 cases a month. No two cases are alike.

Says T. Michael Decker, Child Protective Services worker, San Bernardino County Welfare Department, Ontario, child neglect cases are hard to generalize. It's never just one problem. I'd say 80 percent concern divorced mothers or mothers who are in the process of getting a divorce. They're emotionally upset. They can't cope with the child situation.

Child neglect or brutality against a child can also reflect a parent's own upbringing. The parent, too, may have been the victim of abuse. His parents may have been overly strict. In this case the parent may not be aware that he is abusing the child. Notes Decker, "Often times the parents are not aware they are neglecting or abusing their children. They don't see the reality of the situation."

"They may in fact love their child more than the indifferent parent," contends former social worker and probation officer, Ms. Margaret Lee McKillop. In many cases the child is loyal to the parent and he won't tell when he's being abused.

A child's loyalty can be frightening. The protective instinct can conceal a neglectful situation. Even when the conditions are detrimental to the children, the majority prefer to live with it. That is why the protective service workers try to confront and deal with both parents and children. They try to avoid placing the children outside the home. Says Decker, "Only 5 percent of the cases we deal with are those where we remove the kids from the home. The other 95 percent we can work with."

"Our aim isn't to take the children away from their parents. That's our last resort. We do everything we can before we request a petition to remove a child."

Often a removal is temporary. The protective service workers may request temporary placement as a "readjustment period." They will use this time to counsel the parents and children. Then, when they feel the situation is stable, they return the children to the parents.

The job does not end here. Follow-up reports are required. Follow-ups provide the workers with additional information of the family. It determines any flaws or any reoccurring conflicts. It may reveal chronic neglect symptoms.

"We're not always effective," says Decker. If the conditions don't improve within 90 days it's too late to do anything. We had one mother who kept drinking. She just went steadily down hill. It was too late to help her. Her 16-year-old daughter called us about the neglectful environment."

Notes Ms. Joan Rupp, supervisor of Children's Service Workers, Pomona, "Chronic neglect cases are the hardest to work with. There's no leadway. You may work with a case for several months and then a month later they may be again."

Due to heavy caseloads social workers may work in no one case more than 10 days. They work on a short-term basis. They attempt to curtail the length of time spent on a case of "crisis intervention." Here the workers seek alternatives to family problems. They teach the parents how to cope with stress. They confront the problems directly.

Emotional abuse is equally hard to handle. These are the cases that never make the courts, but they may be as or more damaging than physical abuses.

Neurologically handicapped or hyperactive children are frequently victims of abuse. Their overactive state bewilders their parents. If the parents are unaware of the problem, they assume the child is bad or uncontrollable. Recalls Ms. McKillop, "The NH or hyperactive kids are hard to trace because the parent won't admit the problem. They'll try everything they can do to control the child. They feel guilty about the child. They assume they didn't raise him properly, when he's really hyperactive."

Unaware parents mistake hyperactivity as "naughtiness." Failure to recognize their children's problems is a constant concern for child protective agencies. According to Ms. Rupp, "It's a lack of knowledge. We have some parents who never learned how to care for a family or household. They were neglected by their parents. So when they grew up they had no frame of reference to raise kids by."

The unaware parents, she points out, are the easiest to work with. Once they recognize their weaknesses, they're willing to change and improve."

There are exceptions though. Ms. McKillop recalled one or two threatening cases. In one instance a sixth grade youngster was abused by her insane mother. Says Ms. McKillop, "I had this one case where the girl's mother was hearing voices. She told me that her house was wired and conversations being tapped. She was fine during the day but at night she was strange. She said her daughter was possessed by devils. On several occasions she'd chase her daughter around the house and out into the neighborhood, trying to hit her with an instrument."

The school continued to observe the situation. It was discovered that the girl often went without lunch. The police eventually were able to wrap up the case on evidence that the girl was starving.

"I discovered one kid who was starving," recalled Ms. McKillop. "He was a famine victim. I went out to the house several times. Each time I drove by there were packages of food in the family station wagon."

"The parents were clearly overweight. While I was in the house I also discovered a second child in a back room. He was weak and skinny. Those parents were abnormal."

Sexual molestation is another touchy area. Strong emotions are involved. The mother may cover up for the father. The child may conceal the situation out of fear. In some cases a teenage daughter may have actually invited the actions. The social worker must handle a multitude of feelings. He has to separate his own feelings from the situation. Says Decker, "In sexual molestation cases family members tend to protect each other. You may be able to get the family to admit the problem, but then when you go to court, they won't talk."

Children that have been sexually molested are generally confused. They may have been threatened or bribed by the parent. They may have tolerated the treatment as a normal expectation. Helping these children becomes a long-term project.

Child abuse and neglect are sad facts. Facts that parents, children and social workers will have to cope with and be aware of.
